JOB HUNTING REPORT

2025

2025 IN SUMMARY

2025 marked another milestone in Career Angels' journey, as we celebrated 15 years of empowering senior professionals through strategic career advisory. Over the past decade and a half, we've supported over 12,000 executives globally, navigating the evolving challenges of the job market. In 2025, we saw clear shifts in both how professionals approached their careers and how they leveraged our services to thrive in an increasingly complex environment.

The data shows that 2025 continued the trend toward more strategic career decisions. Nearly half of our clients found new roles, while 48% chose not to change despite (!) having offers. This split reflects the broader European labor market, where job mobility has slowed, job searches take longer, and the focus has shifted from more frequent moves to more careful, risk-aware (risk-averse?) career decisions. Clients are more cautious, actively testing the market, benchmarking compensation, and reassessing their options before making a move.

Our analysis of job search channels also shows a shift. Job ads remain a strong entry point, but for many, they no longer work as a standalone channel. Candidates who combined job applications with direct outreach and networking had a much higher success rate, underlining the importance of multi-touch outreach strategies. This confirms that the most effective job search is no longer about treating each channel in parallel yet separately, it's about activating available tools strategically.

Beyond job search data, 2025 was a year of growth and learning. We continued to expand our educational efforts, having trained in total over 200 professionals through our Career Consultant Courses. These courses are crucial as the demand for high-quality career advisory services continues to rise. We also continued to share our knowledge openly and hosted a series of webinars on job search and AI-focused sessions, tackling pressing questions such as why job searches feel (and are) harder in today's market and how technology is reshaping recruitment. These efforts reflect our commitment to transparent and responsible career guidance, especially as the job market becomes more competitive and technology-driven.

We continued our partnerships with business schools, including POLIMI Graduate School of Management and WU Executive Academy, and with leading professional organizations like ACCA and CIONET, offering valuable insights into the realities of today's professional world.

Looking ahead, our focus remains on helping senior professionals navigate the evolving job market. Whether it's through personalized job search strategies, leadership development, or simply serving as a sounding board, we are committed to providing tailored solutions that empower executives to make informed, confident career decisions. As we continue our journey, we look forward to helping our clients, partners, and the next generation of career consultants reach new heights of success.

Thank you for being part of our journey – here's to another 15 years of meaningful success and growth.

COMMENTARY ON THE 2025 RESULTS

2025 confirmed a structural shift rather than a temporary hesitation.

The almost even split between clients who accepted a new role (49%) and those who consciously decided not to change (48%), despite having offers, reflects what we increasingly see across European labor markets: fewer moves and more risk-aware career decisions.

	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025
Effect	86%	75%	72%	90%	85%	58%	49%	Found a job
	11%	16%	22%	6%	6%	38%	48%	Decided not to change
	3%	9%	6%	4%	9%	4%	3%	Set up a company

This mirrors broader market trends. Job mobility across Europe has slowed to record lows, job searches take longer, and confidence in finding a “better” role has weakened. In this environment, experienced professionals are no longer changing jobs just to escape frustration. They move only when the opportunity clearly justifies the risk.

What stood out in 2025 was not passivity, but conscious restraint. Many clients actively tested the market, attended interviews, benchmarked pay and employment conditions, and checked demand for their profiles. After doing so, nearly half chose not to change. This aligns closely with the “job hugging” trend, where professionals prioritize stability, risk management, and long-term positioning over short-term gains.

In this context, not changing jobs can be as strategic as changing. For many senior professionals, remaining in their role after having verified the market is a conscious choice, not a lack of ambition.

It reflects clarity: knowing where they stand, what is realistically available, and when a move truly makes sense.

The 2025 data therefore signaled greater maturity in career decisions. Professionals are no longer asking “Can I change?” but “Should I change now?”. And increasingly, they act only when the answer is clearly “yes”.

These more cautious, validated decisions are directly linked to how our clients navigate the market. As outcomes became less about speed and more about fit and risk management, the way job offers were sourced also changed. In 2025, it became clear that treating job search channels as separate paths no longer reflects how successful transitions actually happen.

Until 2024, we could describe accepted job offer sources as four separate channels:

- speculative introduction (direct approach)
- networking
- executive search firms (headhunters)
- job ads

	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Ø (3 years)
Source	39%	32%	35%	30%	29%	26%	28%	Speculative Introduction
	35%	23%	28%	21%	18%	19%	19%	Networking
	8%	19%	12%	13%	18%	16%	16%	Executive Search Firms
	18%	26%	25%	36%	35%	39%	37%	Job Ads

In 2025, this model still showed the numbers correctly, but no longer explained how offers were really secured.

From 2024 onward, one pattern became clear: job ads remained the strongest single entry point (yes, even for senior executives!), but they stopped working as a standalone channel. Candidates who combined applications with human touch points, such as direct outreach and networking, moved faster and closed more offers.

In 2025, this was even more visible. We changed the chart structure not to change the data, but to reflect what actually happens. Since 2020, we have advised clients to use all four channels in parallel. What changed is not the strategy itself, but how the channels interact. Successful job searches no longer follow one dominant path. They work as a sequence, where job ads, direct contact, and networking support each other at different stages. The winning strategy is a “multi-touch outreach approach” by activating selected channels in the right order and with the right intensity.

The new breakdown highlights two main patterns:

Direct approach supported by networking (37%): this means that direct outreach works best when it is not purely cold – at least not for long. In a market shaped by automation, longer hiring processes, and higher risk awareness, decision makers respond more often when there is context: a shared connection, a clear reason for contact, or visible proof of expertise, such as a strong executive CV or LinkedIn presence.

This matches what we see more broadly. Job search is harder despite having more tools. Technology increases volume, but not trust. Trust still comes from people.

Job ads supported by networking and direct approach (27%): this is the 2024 trend taken further. Job ads remain effective, especially in ATS-driven and process-heavy recruitment. But success depends on what happens after applying:

- reaching out to the hiring manager or relevant leader
- activating one’s network for internal insight or a warm introduction

... which increases visibility so the application is not “just another CV” in the system. In other words, job ads often start the process, but human connection finishes it.

Executive Search Firms as a standalone channel (16%): executive search firms handle fewer mandates, often confidential or highly strategic, and their processes are slower compared to other channels. Maintaining relationships with headhunters still matters, but this channel requires patience and should be approached with realistic, long-term expectations.

Job ads as a standalone channel (20%): this is the clearest signal – relying on job postings alone is losing effectiveness – down from 37% in 2024, not because job ads no longer work, but because competition, automation, and AI-driven volume have raised the bar. A strong, ATS-compliant CV is now a basic requirement, an absolute must have. And yes, this applies to senior executives too.

When applications look similar and heavily AI-generated, recruiters rely even more on trust, consistency, and human proof. This naturally favors multi-touch strategies over mass applying.

2025 confirmed that the most effective job search channel is no longer a single channel but a multi-touch system. Technology shapes access, but human behavior shapes decisions. Executives who treat job search as a structured project, using job ads as intelligence and entry points and reinforcing them with targeted outreach and networking, consistently outperform those who rely on one route alone.

FOR YOUR COMPANY & ORGANIZATION

Our journey as a company has always been client-driven. Over the past 15 years, as the executive job market has become more complex, less predictable, and increasingly shaped by technology, our cooperation with organizations evolved naturally in response to the needs we observed in practice.

What started as individual career advisory gradually expanded into structured collaboration with companies, HR teams, and educational institutions. Former individual clients invited us to support their organizations. HR leaders asked us to train teams, coach employees, and share practical insight into how executive careers and recruitment work today.

COOPERATION WITH ORGANIZATIONS AND BUSINESS SCHOOLS

In 2025, our organizational engagement focused primarily on education, dialogue, and practical knowledge sharing. We delivered interactive online lectures, webinars, bootcamps, and coaching sessions in cooperation with academic institutions, professional associations, and institutional partners.

Our academic cooperation included, among others:

- WU Executive Academy (Austria)
- POLIMI Graduate School of Management (Italy)
- Warsaw School of Technology Business School (Poland)
- Kozminski University (Poland)

In parallel, we worked with professional and industry organizations such as CIONET, ACCA, and Leading Women. In these collaborations, the focus was always practical: career management, leadership development, and the realities of how executive recruitment processes function.

Through this work, we also supported G/E/MBA students, alumni, and experienced professionals with hands-on insight into career strategy, job search decision-making, and market positioning.

CAREER ADVISORY EDUCATION

Educating the next generation of professional Career Consultants is a responsibility we take seriously. As job searches become longer and career decisions more demanding, the quality of career advice matters more than ever.

In 2025, we delivered two open Polish editions of the Career Consultant Course, bringing the total number of editions to twelve since the program's launch in 2019. In parallel, we conducted six tailored in-house programs for HR departments across different industries.

To date, over 215 professionals have completed our career advisory education programs. Participants include recruiters, headhunters, Executive Search consultants with 7-25 years of experience, coaches looking to expand their offer, HR professionals aiming to better support their employees, as well as consultants and career advisors, both experienced and new to the field.

In parallel, we are finalizing the advanced Career Angels Academy program, designed to deepen professional competence in career advisory and reflect the growing complexity of executive career transitions. The program builds on our long-standing methodology and practical experience from individual, organizational, and educational projects.

As part of this initiative, we are opening conversations with experienced professionals who would like to contribute to the development and delivery of the Academy. We are particularly interested in practitioners who combine solid market experience with analytical thinking and strong ethical standards. Professionals interested in exploring potential cooperation are welcome to reach out to us at Contact@CareerAngels.eu.

Across all educational formats, our focus remains the same: to raise the quality of career advisory services and share know-how that reflects how the executive job market actually works.

OPEN KNOWLEDGE AND RESPONSIBLE SUPPORT INITIATIVES

Over the past 15 years, we have observed one consistent pattern: as the job market becomes more complex, access to reliable and practical career knowledge becomes more uneven. Technology, automation, and longer recruitment processes have made it harder for experienced professionals, especially those who have not actively searched for a job in many years.

By 2025, this gap became even more visible. Many highly experienced managers and executives struggled not because of a lack of competence, but because their job search strategies no longer matched today's market reality.

As part of our 15th anniversary, we deliberately focused on opening access to job search knowledge. Instead of celebratory campaigns, we invested in free and open initiatives designed to help experienced professionals better understand current market realities before making career decisions.

This included a structured series of job search webinars, addressing the full job search process step by step: from defining a realistic career goal, through CV and LinkedIn optimization, to strategic outreach, networking, and interview preparation.

The strong interest in these initiatives confirmed what we see in our daily work: professionals are looking for clarity and orientation, not motivation slogans.

In parallel, we delivered a dedicated AI-focused webinar series addressing one of the most frequent questions we hear from experienced candidates: "Why does job search feel so much harder than it used to?"

The sessions focused on:

- how AI and technology shape the recruitment funnel,
- what happens to applications before a human ever sees them,
- why relying solely on job postings delivers diminishing returns,
- and how candidates can realistically adjust their strategy.

The emphasis was practical and experience-based. We did not promote tools for their own sake, but showed where technology changes the rules and where human judgment still determines outcomes.

Alongside open education, we continued our CSR activities, offering structured career support to professionals facing prolonged job search challenges. In 2025, 41 candidates applied to our CSR initiative, and 4 experienced professionals were selected for cooperation. Half of them secured new jobs or interesting projects even before completing the program!

This initiative reflects a reality often overlooked in public debate: even senior professionals can find themselves stuck when market dynamics shift faster than their strategies. Providing realistic, structured support in such situations remains an important part of our responsibility as career advisors.

As part of our 15th anniversary, we also shared a series of real client cases documenting career transitions after redundancy, uncertainty, or major change. These cases show how experienced professionals navigate complex decisions in practice: from regaining stability to choosing growth-oriented paths.

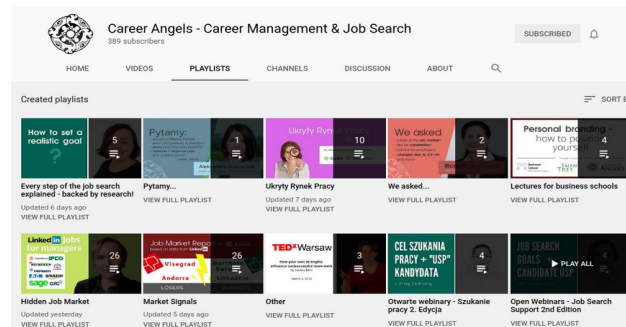

After 15 years, these stories reflect the same principle that guides our work today: in a more complex, risk-sensitive, and technology-driven job market, preparation and strategy matter more than speed.

Our Women on Boards program provides mentorship, knowledge-sharing, and networking opportunities, creating a supportive community for women ready to take their careers to the next level. This initiative enables us to address challenges such as hitting the glass ceiling, career advancement, and leadership representation.

If you:

- have experience in managerial or director-level roles,
- seek to advance your career by joining a board,
- embrace challenges and are eager to develop your leadership skills,
- value constructive feedback and apply it effectively,
- are ready to commit – both time- and energy-wise,
- recognize the importance of diversity and wish to contribute to positive change,
- know what motivates you,
- are patient and systematic,
- appreciate expert knowledge that accelerates your career growth and are ready to take advantage of it...

... then you are ready to take the next step in your career. Don't know what to begin with? We've got you covered – with our support, you will achieve your goal(s) in no time!

Overview of the program

The program consists of 7 interactive sessions during which you and your Career Angel will be working together on:

- developing an effective application strategy,
- refining your leadership skills,
- prepare for the challenges that come with holding a board role

Before each session, you will receive materials to read & “homework” to do. After each session, you will walk out with palpable material, knowing exactly what to do next and how to do it.

Flexible program options

We understand that every individual's journey is unique. That's why we designed two versions of the program:

- DIY: complete the tasks independently, on your own, using our detailed resources and guides,
- Outsourcing: delegate selected tasks (e.g. CV writing or LinkedIn optimization) to us for a smoother, more efficient process.

Why focus on women in leadership?

Conditions on today's job market favor women who want to reach for more. Although they are still underrepresented on company boards in Europe, a new European Union “Women on Boards” directive helps to change that. In 2026, women should make up a min. of 40% of the supervisory boards of the largest companies in the EU. This is your chance to advance and join the board – and to influence key decisions.

It is not only a matter of representation, but also of bringing diverse perspectives into decision-making processes, which benefits entire organizations.

BONUS: EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT MANAGING YOUR CAREER

What influences how we manage our careers?

Why do we choose one offer over another?

Is it really bad to stay 12 years at the same company?

Should we denounce people who change jobs frequently?

What about buying into the rat race?

Does it make you happy to climb the corporate ladder?

You really prefer atmosphere & people over money & prestige?

They call you immature for not choosing a serious path?

Your main driver is self-development?

Do you catch yourself thinking, "I hate managing people!"?

I'm 42 years old. It's too late to change anything.

Frustration kicks in when there's too much routine?

Answer the following two questions honestly:

1) How would you define a successful career?

2) If everything was possible, how would your most satisfying and fulfilling career path look like?

36% of the respondents would answer both questions (almost) identically, whereas 64% would give two slightly or completely different answers. This information comes from Decision Dynamics, a company that has been collecting and analyzing data on i.a. people's careers for over 40 years. What else does the research tell us?

1) There's a "brain-level" and a "heart-level" response

2) There are common patterns

Decision Dynamics' Career Model consists of four main Career Concepts or views of an ideal career:

The Expert Career Concept is the most stable and historically dominant view of a successful career as being a lifelong commitment to a profession with which one identifies. Success means to be the best, i.e. the expert in one's area.

The Linear Career Concept is instead focused on rapid movement upward the "corporate ladder". Success is measured in the level one has reached, which can be translated in responsibility, power and influence.

The Spiral Career Concept is a less traditional view where one rather discovers one's career through periodic (5-10 years) lateral changes of occupational fields. Success means frequent opportunities to widen one's competence base and get new experiences.

The Transitory Career Concept is the most change-oriented and least conventional view, even to the extent that many consider it as not even a career. The more different and frequent the changes, the better.

By now you should have realized that everybody's definition of a successful career is equally wrong as it's right. There simply is no one right answer. Different things make different people happy.

We really, really hope that you are not among the 36%, but if there's a slight chance that you are, talk to a certified Career Angel.

You'll receive:

- an online questionnaire
- a report showing the differences between the career path you've chosen and the one that motivates you the most
- a comprehensive feedforward session that you'll leave with concrete next steps

If you are interested in receiving an offer or more information, please contact Contact@CareerAngels.eu.

Please note that this model can also be applied throughout an entire organization for better candidate, role and culture fitting.
